INTRODUCTION

The South Dakota Periodicals Index 1987-1991 is a subject and author index to selected South Dakota periodicals and annuals published from 1987 through 1991. This multi-year cumulative edition continues indexing most of the publications covered by the previous cumulative edition and its annual supplements. In addition this cumulative edition includes indexing for 13 more periodicals than were covered by the 1982-1986 edition.

This index is intended to facilitate the location of information about the people, places, events, and issues that make South Dakota a special place through the use of the information in selected South Dakota publications. By using this index, people across the state, and elsewhere, can identify useful information about our state even though they may not be familiar with the publications and/or the publications may not be owned by libraries in their area. Regular interlibrary loan procedures through local libraries may be used to obtain copies of relevant articles.

The South Dakota Periodicals Index is not intended to be a comprehensive source of all articles about South Dakota in periodicals or annual publications. Staffing and budgetary realities necessitate that we include only a selected list of South Dakota publications which we believe will provide the most useful information to the greatest number of people.

Although scholarly articles are included, the index is not intended solely for an academic audience. In fact, we view the target audience to consist mainly of citizens of South Dakota and other persons interested in the state. Topics covered by the index are highly eclectic because of the diversity of the publications indexed. Basically, we have tried to include publications which illuminate the rich history, culture, and artistry of the state along with its social, economic, and environmental diversity. Some short fiction, poetry, and photographic essays are also indexed. All types of South Dakotans are represented by the listed articles, including: farmers, politicians, city folks, Native Americans, ethnic minorities, teachers, hunters, and many others.

We tried to produce an index which will make it easier to locate information about South Dakota. We also wanted to highlight some of the fine publications and authors in South Dakota. We believe this index takes a step toward those goals.

Users’ Guide

The South Dakota Periodicals Index consists of two main parts: a subject index, and an author index.

I. The Subject Index The subject index

Articles about specific topics are found listed under subject headings which describe that topic, e.g., RAILROADS, WALLEYES, GHOST TOWNS. Place names and personal names may also be used as subject headings if articles have been written about a specific place, e.g., RAPID CITY, S.D. or person, e.g., PYLE, GLADYS (1890-1986).

Following each subject heading will be a list of citations to articles about that subject and/or a cross reference to other subject headings. Each citation includes all the information necessary to locate each article. A sample entry follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject heading</th>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Title of article</th>
<th>Abbreviation of periodical title</th>
<th>Volume #</th>
<th>Issue #</th>
<th>Page #s</th>
<th>Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>GOVERNORS—S.D.</td>
<td>MILLER, J.E.</td>
<td>OUR COWBOY GOVERNOR</td>
<td>SDMAG</td>
<td>V 2</td>
<td>NO 4</td>
<td>P 6-11</td>
<td>NOV 1986</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

“SEE” references guide you from a subject heading under which no information is given to a different subject heading under which the desired information will be found. For example, when looking up information about sod houses you are referred to the proper subject heading by the cross reference: SOD HOUSES SEE HOUSES—SOD.

“SEE ALSO” references alert you to the fact that although information is found under a particular subject heading, additional related information may be found under other headings. For example: BANKRUPTCY SEE ALSO FARM FORECLOSURES.

II. The Author Index The author index

The author index follows the subject index. Using the author index allows you to look up the name of an author and find a list of their articles.

INDEXING POLICIES

Generally all substantive articles are indexed in each publication. Substantive articles do not include brief announcements of events or other articles of only a few sentences. Generally, substantive articles also do not include organization or membership news, letters to the editor, etc. In addition, some selective indexing occurs in those publications which publish numerous articles which are not specifically related to South Dakota. For example, selective indexing of South Dakota Law Review excludes most material which deals only with global issues, i.e., that which is not specifically related to South Dakota. A few articles are indexed although they do not pertain to South Dakota because they appear in publications which we index fully and they are substantive.

Generally, each indexed article may be listed under as many as five subject headings and under as many as five authors names. In all cases, an attempt was made to adequately describe the contents of each article, and subject headings were assigned as needed. Occasionally, articles may have been assigned more than five subject headings, and many were assigned less than five. Subject headings were not based on title keywords although some title words may have been assigned as headings. Sears List of Subject Headings, 13th and 14th editions, served as a guide for subject heading assignment. However, due to the nature of the index no single published subject headings list was sufficient. Therefore the Library of Congress Subject Headings was also consulted; and often it was necessary to create our own headings. A subject authority file of more than 4300 headings, including numerous cross references, has developed as the indexing progressed.

The following is a list of some specific indexing guidelines which were used in this indexing project:

Articles about specific individuals, or which give biographical information about a person, are listed under their names with birth and death dates included when possible, e.g., COOLIDGE, CALVIN (1872-1933).

Articles about specific places, e.g., cities, towns, counties, parks, historic sites, etc., are listed under their specific names. They may also be listed under a generic term, e.g., PARKS.

Book reviews are included only for books about South Dakota topics. They are listed under either BOOK REVIEWS, BOOK REVIEWS - BIOGRAPHY, or BOOK REVIEWS - PLACES only, not under the subjects of the books or under the authors. Other information about books pertaining to South Dakota can be found under either BOOK NOTES, BOOK NOTES - BIOGRAPHY, or BOOK NOTES - PLACES which lists short descriptive annotations, not critical reviews. Again these descriptive book notes are not listed under the specific subjects of the books or under their authors.

Articles about lakes are listed under LAKE as the first word. For example, Lewis and Clark Lake is indexed under LAKE LEWIS AND CLARK.

Fiction, short stories, and poetry are included in the index, but this material is not indexed by topic. Instead it is listed under the generic term(s), e.g., CHILDREN'S STORIES, SHORT STORIES, POEMS, etc. It also is listed in the author index under the authors' names.

Articles referring to the winners of awards and prizes are listed under the heading, AWARDS AND PRIZES, and under the names of the individuals when biographical information is given.

Articles about American Indians are listed under NATIVE AMERICANS followed by subheadings, e.g., NATIVE AMERICANS - HEALTH AND MEDICINE, and also they may be listed under more specific headings, e.g., personal names, tribal names, reservation names, etc.
