

Light Physics

Carol Deering

The quarter moon
proclaims her silver sprawl
a dancefloor,
a meeting place for pronghorn, rabbits, an occasional skim of birds, anyone
drawn to sand and tension, soft vibration,
night
sensing that light
is music, and music
is shadows dense
with whispered cadence
embraced
by light.