Venison . .

Care and Cooking

Venison is an especially choice meat. Care in the field, in cutting, in storing, and in cooking all contribute to the quality of the meat you will serve. This fact sheet presents ways to handle venison and recipes you may wish to try.

FIELD CARE

Proper field care is most important if you want excellent meat from your deer.

After the deer has been shot, bleed the carcass if the hit has been scored in the head, neck, or spinal cord. Fatal wounds elsewhere in the animal usually cause the deer to bleed out, especially if the animal has run after being hit. Additional bleeding need not be attempted.

If bleeding is required, sever the major blood vessels deep within the base of the neck at the junction of the chest cavity. A sharp, narrow knife stuck deeply into this area and slashed sideways will do the trick. Once bleeding begins, prop the carcass above the ground or lay it on a hillside so that the blood will flow away from the meat.

Another very important step in field care is quick and clean removal of the viscera (entrails). Meat is often tainted during field dressing when hair and gland secretions are allowed to contact the meat. For this reason some hunters prefer to cut the glands (metatarsal glands) on the inside of the hind legs at the hocks. If care is taken not to handle the legs at the glands, the glands need not be removed.

To easily remove the viscera, hang the deer with the head upwards, or place it in an inclined position so that the viscera can be rolled outward and hindward after the body cavity has been opened. First, cut the windpipe and food tube by reaching into the neck area, then free the diaphragm from across the upper body cavity. Take care not to puncture the paunch. Split the pelvic bone with a durable knife or hatchet to allow complete removal of the digestive tract and the reproductive organs.

Once the viscera has been taken out, prop the body cavity open to quicken cooling. Wipe the cavity with a dry, clean cloth. If the cavity is soiled from stomach or intestinal contents, wash it out with clean cold water.

Deer may be left unskinned, as the carcass will cool readily with the hide on. Leaving the hide on helps keep the meat clean during transportation from the field to your home or place of processing.

Meat quickly spoils from internal heat, so don't leave the carcass on the ground to cool; the meat on the underside is likely to spoil within a short time. Keep the deer in shade where air will freely circulate around it.

Venison is often ruined as table meat during its transportation from the field to the final destination, especially when unseasonably warm weather prevails. Strapping the carcass on a cartop carrier is the best method of keeping the meat cool. If traveling is to be done at night, the cooled deer carcass can be put into the automobile trunk. Take precautions so the animal does not get dirty from road dust. Ordinary cheesecloth makes suitable cover and prevents flies from reaching the meat.

HOME OR LOCKER CARE

After transporting the deer carcass to your home, skin but do not split it. Aging, or hanging the carcass in the cooler (36° to 38° F.) for 14 days, increases the tenderness of the various cuts. Aging occurs more rapidly when the carcass is held at a higher temperature a few days prior to hanging in the cooler. For every day the carcass is out in 40° to 50° F. temperatures, subtract 2 to 3 days from the total aging time.

The carcass may be split before separating it into the major cuts, or split afterward in the same manner as lamb. If the latter method is used, the paired major cuts will be split. This is usually the easiest. Separate the major cuts as shown in the diagram.

Trim the major cuts, removing any external fat and superficial, unsightly areas (dried blood, hair, or any foreign substance). The major cuts are then ready to be processed into portions ready for cooking.

The chops and steaks may be cut approximately 1 inch thick, depending upon individual preference. Roasts removed as described below will weigh approx-

SUGGESTED CUTTING OF DEER CARCASS

1. SHOULDER

- a. Arm Chops
- b. Blade Chops
- c. Ground or Stew Meat

2. RIB AND LOIN

- All Chops

3. ROUND AND RUMP

- For Roast—
 - a. Sirloin Tip
 - b. Inside Round (inside of c.)
 - c. outside round
- For Steak—entire section

4. SHANKS AND FLANK

- Ground Venison

imately 3 pounds. Cut stew pieces into 1-inch cubes. Run the ground venison through the grinder twice using a one-eighth inch plate the final time.

The shoulder (removed between the 5th and 6th ribs) may be processed by alternately removing about four arm and blade chops; use remaining portion for stew or ground meat. The rib and loin may be used entirely for chops. The round may be utilized either as roasts or steaks, depending on individual preference. The three roasts are boneless, convenient in size, and easy to separate. Remove the sirloin tip roast first, then the inside (top) and outside (bottom) roasts may easily be separated. Use the shanks, flank, and trim for stew or ground meat.

Venison will retain its high quality for six months or longer if it is wrapped carefully in moisture-vapor proof materials and stored in a freezer which maintains a low temperature (-10°F.).

COOKING

In general meat from deer may be cooked by the same methods as beef or lamb. If natural fat is not sufficient, additional fat may be added freely during cooking.

Cooking venison to a medium or rare stage is preferred to cooking it well done. The fibers are very juicy, but even a little over-cooking makes the meat dry.

Steaks and chops are delicious broiled or braised. Larger cuts are excellent roasted. Added flavorings which are especially desirable with venison are Worcestershire sauce, onion, garlic, mushrooms, and tomato.

The following recipes use additional ingredients and flavoring and may be served as main dishes.

Braised Venison Chops in Mushroom Gravy (4 servings)

- 3 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 4 large venison loin chops
- 1¼ tsp. salt
- dash of pepper
- 1 c. water
- 1 10½ oz. can mushroom soup
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Use a skillet with a tight-fitting cover (300°F.). Cook onions in fat until golden. Sprinkle chops with salt and pepper. Remove onions from skillet and brown chops slowly (uncovered at 340°F.) on both sides. Add ¼ c. of the water, cover and simmer 15 minutes (220°F.). Add ¼ c. more water, cover, and simmer another 15 minutes. Add the remaining water and the mushroom soup. Cover and continue cooking slowly for half an hour. Stir in Worcestershire sauce just before serving.

Venison Swiss Steak (3-4 servings)

- 1½ lbs. venison round steak, cut into individual servings
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tbsp. shortening
- ¼ to ½ c. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 1 10½ oz. can tomato soup

Mix flour, salt and pepper. Pound flour mixture into steaks. Cook onions in fat in uncovered pressure sauce pan until partly done. Move onions to one side and brown meat on both sides. Pour soup over meat and cook for 15 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

Variation: Cook onions in fat in skillet (300° F.). Remove from pan. Prepare meat as above and brown at 340° F. Add onions and soup and cook in electric skillet (220° F.) or oven (350° F.) for 1 to 1½ hours.

Venison Stroganoff (4-5 servings)

- 1½ lbs. venison sirloin steak cut in ½-inch strips
- ¼ c. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ c. fat
- 1 large onion, finely chopped
- 1 3½ oz. can mushrooms (optional)
- ½ tsp. garlic powder
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 1 beef bouillon cube dissolved in 1¼ c. water
- 1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 c. sour cream
- 1½ to 2 c. cooked rice

Mix 1 tsp. salt with ¼ c. flour. Roll steak in flour and salt mixture. Cook onions, mushrooms and garlic in fat for 5 minutes (300° F.). Add steak. Brown evenly (340° F.). Remove meat, onions, and mushrooms from pan. Combine 2 tbsp. flour with drippings in pan. Add Worcestershire sauce and bouillon cube dissolved in water. Cook until thickened. Stir in sour cream and heat slowly (220° F.) until gravy simmers. Add venison and vegetables and heat for a few minutes. Serve over hot cooked rice.

Horseradish Sauce for Venison Steak (4-6 servings)

- ¾ c. sour cream
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2 tbsp. prepared horseradish
- 1 tsp. parsley flakes

Combine all ingredients. Mix well and serve with broiled or pan broiled venison steak. Butter is excellent for pan broiling deer meat but other fats may be used.

This sauce may be frozen and used at a later date.

Spanish Venison (4 servings)

- 2 large onions, chopped
- 2 tbsp. bacon fat (or other shortening)
- 4 venison loin chops, trimmed
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 carrot, thinly sliced
- 1 stalk of celery, sliced
- No. 300 can (1¼ c.) tomato sauce

Preheat oven to 350° F. Cook chopped onions in bacon fat until golden brown (300° F.). Remove onions. In the same fat, sear chops on both sides (360° F.). Put chops in a flat casserole. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Spread onions over meat and top with the chopped green pepper, sliced carrot, and sliced celery. Pour tomato sauce over meat and vegetables. Cover casserole (fitted cover or aluminum foil). Bake in 350° F. oven for 1 to 1¼ hours. The vegetables may not be fully cooked at the end of this time but the "crunchiness" adds to the texture. If fully cooked vegetables are desired, 10 to 15 minutes more baking time will be necessary.

Variation: Prepare onions and chops as above. Leave browned chops in skillet (electric or other). Arrange vegetables and tomato sauce over meat as directed above. Cover skillet. Simmer (220° F.) ¾ to 1 hour.

Venison Oven Steak Dinner (4 servings)

- 3 slices bacon, diced
- 2 onions, sliced
- 1 3½ oz. can mushrooms (optional)
- 4 venison rib steaks, trimmed
- ¼ c. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 2 medium potatoes, quartered
- 1 small bay leaf
- ¾ c. tomato sauce (or juice)
- 1 c. (8 oz. can) green beans, drained
- grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

Preheat oven to 350° F. Cook bacon. Use fat to cook onions and mushrooms until a light golden color (300° F.). Remove onions and mushrooms from pan. Mix flour, salt, and pepper. Rub flour mixture into steaks and brown them slowly on both sides (340° F.). Place browned steaks in casserole. Add onions, mushrooms, bacon, potatoes, and bay leaf and pour tomato sauce over all. Bake at 350° F. for 1½ hours or until meat is tender. Add beans and cook 10 minutes more. If desired sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese just before serving.

Venison Roast Marinade
(for 3 to 4 lb. roast)

- 3 c. cold water
- 1 c. tomatoes (or tomato juice)
- ½ c. vinegar
- ¼ c. sugar
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 2 onions, sliced
- 2 carrots, quartered
- 3 bay leaves
- 1 tbsp. meat tenderizer
- 1 tsp. celery salt
- 1 tsp. dry mustard
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. garlic powder
- ¼ tsp. pepper

This marinade is made the day before the venison is to be served and added to the roast to allow marinade to flavor and tenderize the meat.

Combine all ingredients in deep roaster or kettle which is to be used for cooking meat. If possible allow marinade to stand at room temperature for a few hours. Place thawed roast in marinade so mixture covers meat. Refrigerate roast in marinade over night. Cook meat in 350° F. oven in marinade mixture, keeping roaster covered. Allow 20 to 25 minutes per pound for medium doneness. If liquid evaporates, add water. Baste with juice occasionally. When meat is done, remove from pan. Strain juice and mash vegetables through a strainer. Set aside until fat comes to top. Skim off fat. Thicken juice for gravy.

CUBED STEW MEAT

The cubed stew meat is very useable. Flavor is best when all visible fat is removed during cutting.

Venison Pie
(4 servings)

- 1 lb. venison stew meat, trimmed and cubed
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 1 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 large onion, diced
- 2 carrots, thinly sliced
- 3 tbsp. flour
- 1 quart boiling water
- 4 medium potatoes, diced
- Baking powder biscuit dough for 4 large biscuits

Heat water to boiling. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper. Use a large skillet or saucepan which can be put in the oven. Brown meat in butter (340° F.). Add onion and cook a few minutes, then add carrots. Sprinkle with flour and stir well. Add water and simmer until meat is tender. Preheat oven to 425° F. Add potatoes, and cook until done. Top mixture with biscuits and bake in 425° F. oven until biscuits are brown.

Barbecued Venison
(4 servings)

Barbecue Sauce:

- ½ c. cider vinegar
- ½ c. catsup
- ¼ c. water
- 1 tbsp. brown sugar
- 1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- ½ tsp. garlic powder
- ¼ tsp. Tabasco

Mix all ingredients and simmer together for 15 minutes.

Barbecued Venison:

- 1½ lb. venison stew meat, trimmed
- 3 tbsp. shortening
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1 recipe barbecue sauce
- ½ c. sweet cream for gravy (optional)

Preheat oven to 350° F. Brown trimmed stew meat in shortening in deep skillet which can be put into oven. Partially cover browned venison with sliced onions. Pour some of barbecue sauce over meat and onions. Put skillet (uncovered) in preheated oven. As the sauce cooks away, add more. Cook until most of the sauce is absorbed (about 1 hour). Remove meat to hot platter.

Optional: Make a rich gravy in skillet by adding sweet cream and stirring over a low fire until it reaches desired thickness. Pour gravy over meat or serve separately.

This is very spicy. If less spice is desired, decrease pepper and Tabasco.

Venison Stew
(3-4 servings)

- ¾ lb. venison stew meat, trimmed and cubed
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 2 tbsp. butter
- 1 onion, cut in large pieces
- 2 tbsp. chopped green pepper
- ½ c. hot water
- ¾ c. tomatoes or juice
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 1 carrot, sliced
- 1 stalk celery, sliced
- 1 tbsp. chopped celery leaves
- dash o's chili powder
- 2 tbsp. catsup
- 2 medium potatoes, quartered
- 1 c. peas
- 1 tsp. parsley flakes

Mix flour, salt, and pepper. Roll pieces of stew meat in flour mixture. Use a heavy saucepan. Brown meat, green pepper, and onion in fat (340° F.). Add water, tomatoes, lemon juice, carrot, celery leaves, chili powder, and catsup. Cook about 1 hour or until meat is tender. Add potatoes and cook about 15 minutes longer. At the last, add peas and parsley. Cook until all vegetables are tender. If you prefer thicker gravy, add a little flour mixed with water just before serving.

Variation: Prepare meat as above. Brown meat in fat in pressure saucepan (follow directions of manufacturer). Add water and cook for 10 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. Cool according to manufacturer's directions. Add other ingredients except peas and parsley. Cook for 8 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool again. Add peas and parsley and reheat.

GROUND VENISON

The ground meat tends to be dry unless moisture is mixed into the meat or added during cooking. A sauce served over the meat patties also helps to keep them moist. Over-cooking contributes to the dryness. If broiled patties are still a little pink in the center when served, the meat is more juicy.

Liquid-Flavoring Combinations for Ground Venison

Liquid-flavoring combinations which seem quite acceptable with ground venison are given in amount to use with 1 lb. ground meat. Also add 1 tsp. salt and a dash of pepper to each pound of meat.

- ½ c. milk and ½ tsp. garlic powder
- ½ c. sour cream and 1 tsp. green onion tops or chives
- ½ c. tomato sauce
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice, ¼ c. water, and 1 tbsp. minced onion
- ½ c. water and ½ tsp. oregano

Basic venison patty recipe

- 2 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 tbsp. flour
- ½ c. water
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1 medium onion thinly sliced

Brown shaped patties in butter (340° F.). Remove from skillet. Add flour to butter remaining in skillet and stir until flour is lightly browned (300° F.). Fill 4 individual casseroles or a 1½ quart casserole by alternating layers of noodles, Mozzarella cheese, tomato-meat mixture and Parmesan cheese. Bake in 375° F. oven 15 minutes for individual casseroles or 20 to 25 minutes for large casserole.

Venison Chili

(4 servings)

- 2 tbsp. shortening

- ½ tsp. chili powder
- ½ tsp. garlic powder
- ½ tsp. pepper
- No. 2 can red kidney beans
- No. 2 can tomato sauce

Cook chopped onion in shortening (300° F.) until golden. Add ground venison. Cook until venison is brown and moist from its own juice (360° F.). Add salt, chili powder, garlic powder, and pepper. Mix well. Add beans and tomato sauce. Mix well and simmer, stirring occasionally, until smooth and thick (220° F.).

COOKED VENISON

When using left over cooked venison in a recipe, the texture is improved if the meat is chopped or cubed. Ground cooked meat becomes powdery and feels grainy in the mouth.

Venison and Bacon Salad

(4 servings)

- 3 c. diced, cooked venison
- ¼ c. French dressing
- 4 large tomatoes, not peeled
- 1 tsp. salt
- 4 lettuce cups

- ¼ c. sliced radishes
- ½ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. garlic salt
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- ¾ c. mayonnaise

The evening before salad is to be served (or at least 4 to 5 hours before), toss diced meat with French dressing. The meat is tenderized and absorbs flavor of dressing. Refrigerate. One to two hours before serving time cut tomatoes in 6 sections but not all the way through so they will open like a flower. Sprinkle tomatoes with salt and arrange in lettuce cups. Chill. Fry bacon and crumble. Toss together venison, bacon, celery, radishes, salt, garlic salt, and Worcestershire sauce. Mix in the mayonnaise. This can stand in refrigerator 1 to 1½ hours before serving if desired. Just before serving spoon salad into tomato shells and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Venison-Vegetable Casserole

Cover broccoli with venison mixture. Pour white sauce on top. Combine melted butter with cracker crumbs and sprinkle over sauce. Bake in 325° F. oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Venison Mincemeat (Makes six 9-inch pies)

- 2 lbs. cooked venison, chopped
- 3 lbs. apples, chopped (unpeeled)
- 2 lbs. raisins
- 1 lb. currants
- 1 large can crushed pineapple
- 1 c. white sugar
- 1 c. brown sugar

- 1 tbsp. salt
- 2 tsp. cinnamon
- 2 tsp. allspice
- 2 tsp. cloves
- 2 tsp. nutmeg
- 2 tsp. vanilla

Use leftover cooked venison or simmer shoulder or other pieces until tender. When meat is cool, chop meat and apples with knife or blade chopper (grinding gives an undesirable "mealy" texture to the meat). Combine all ingredients in a large kettle. Bring mincemeat to a slow, bubbling boil. Reduce heat and let simmer from 1½ to 2 hours. If it seems dry during cooking, add more cider or meat stock. Mincemeat may be stored frozen or packed hot in pint jars and processed 20 minutes at 10 lbs. pressure.
